HIV Fellowship Program

A one-year Comprehensive Training Program in HIV Medicine USC Los Angeles AIDS Education and Training Center University of Southern California, Keck School of Medicine

The USC HIV Medicine Fellowship, based at the Los Angeles County+USC Medical Center, Los Angeles (LAC+USC) provides in-depth training in the medical management of persons living with HIV/AIDS at all stages of disease, from initial diagnosis to advanced treatment of multidrug resistant virus and opportunistic infections.

Every year this, 12-month, post-graduate fellowship trains two physicians in the knowledge and skills necessary to provide expert HIV care according to national HIV guidelines and practice standards.

Successful completion of the fellowship leads to eligibility to complete the certification in HIV medicine through the American Academy of HIV Medicine.

Longitudinal Experience
The fellows will have the opportunity to manage patients in all stages of HIV working in HIV, infectious disease, specialty clinics, and providing emergency room consultations. Experiences occur at LAC+USC Medical Center, Childrens Hospital, LA, Los Angeles County Jail, Skid Row, and at selected sites in the Community. The fellows will participate in educational endeavors and projects to become HIV educators as well as clinicians.
